

The Fortune Card of Casey Spec

Birth: A beginning, your root, the start to a new path. We come into this world kicking and screaming, a dividing organism, ripped from our vessel. Remember new begins are hard. Before breathing, before learning, before talking, we must be born. This card could be the start of a new venture, a new path, or a need for one. Whatever the situation may be, it is a very serious one

The Twins: Inside of you is two. The twins represent a divided self. Take the time you need to fully examine your situation. Make sure you make wholehearted decisions. Ask for counsel from trusted friends and family.

Sleep: Rest. An end to the battle. A time to heal. A time for peace. Try not to waste precious energy on things that are not worth your time. Beware situations that are more trouble than they are worth. It is time to rest and take self-care. Make time for your self.

The Sun: A new day. Warmth. Positivity. Good fortune. The Sun is a source of life for all. Let it shine bright on you. Surround your self with environments, situations, and others that let you grow. This is a time to bask in your glory and accomplishment and acknowledge your growth.

Hope: Look for hope, don't lose sight. In every difficult situation, it is all too easy to get lost in the overwhelming challenges that surround you. Hope will get you through and guide you

Hand of Fortune: You are at a crossroads. The Wheels of fate are turning. There are times in our lives where we must work our hardest and put our lives in the hands of fate. Let the hand of the beyond spin your wheel.

Despair: You must escape a bad situation. In our darkest times, we lose sight of all that is good. You must work hard to escape the melancholy void.

The Fox: Clever, creative, cunning, and some times sneaky. You will need to use these skills to navigate your situation. Beware trickery among friends and colleagues.

The Devil: Be careful who and what you surround yourself with. Take note of your indulgences. Pay attention to routines, situations, and others that negatively impact your life, happiness, and future goals.

The Messenger: Look for positive signs in your life. The Messenger represents something entering your life that you must take notice of and follow. Tidings of a better situation. Don't sit back and let it pass you by. Be mindful of your surroundings in the near to present future as to not miss a passing good opportunity.

Time: Time heals, makes one grow wise, creates change, and opens new paths. Time is also an investment. Giving things can be difficult and deserves patience. Change takes time and energy. Time is the most valuable thing a human has to give. Life is very short, so be careful of your investments.

Death: An ending or a need for one. Make sure when you close one door you open another. Remember that death can mean peace for the suffering. Endings can be difficult, but the most important and positive changes in life can begin from an ending. Death can be not just an end to a story, but the completion of just one of its many chapters.

The Snakes: The Snakes represent deception, desire, seduction, a craving for the hunt. There is a need to take immediate action, to strike like a snake, towards your desires. Beware the primal urges of immediacy. When things move fast we can lose sight of the bigger picture.

The Roses: A gift has come your way from someone or something you care deeply about. It could be an act of flirtation, a message of forgiveness, or an invitation to connect. Remember this is a time for compassion and care. Roses are the sign of a precious offering.

Passion: Passion is what drives us. Take note, you are in need or in deep. At times we are hopelessly mired in the daily routine of life and lose track of what really drives us. On the other hand, beware not to be driven so intensely that you forget to open your eyes and see logic.

The Bride: You are standing at life's proverbial alter. You have made a very serious commitment. A nervousness stirs within you. You are about to start a new chapter in your life. The world would like to wrap you in its love. Good luck on your new journey.

The Birds: The chatter of birds surround you. This could be socially or professionally. Beware gossip and/or false friendships. Do not indulge in petty chatter. Your life may need focus and consistency. In the near to present future, make sure to take a more professional approach to situations.

Flowers: This card represents a need to flaunt your self, love your self, love your body, and be open to others. Flowers represent sexual attraction and flattery. Flowers are the seed-bearing part of the plant, and where its reproductive organs live. Surround yourself with beauty, nature and connect with yourself.

Content: This a time to be happy with where you are and what you have accomplished. Stand strong in your values and remember where you came from. Take time to appreciate and acknowledge the things that give you value in this world. Celebrate what you have emotionally and physically.

Youth: The youth card represents innocence, immaturity, and inexperience. Make sure to handle situations maturely. This may be a time for selflessness. Beware reckless risk-taking. When navigating a situation handle it with thoughtfulness and experience.

Woman: A bearer of life. A symbol of emotional strength, ingenuity, creativity, and femininity. This card can also represent motherhood and nurturing. A need to be cared for and guided. Be open to guidance and emotional support.

Man: A symbol of fatherhood, mentorship, and masculinity. You may have a need for protection from an aggressive force. Be on the look-out for an opportunity for professional or personal mentorship. Beware heated aggressive situations.

The Ravens: In Norse mythology, The two ravens fly over the world and bring back information to the Gods. This card represents the mind and the spreading of information. Let your soul be a sponge for knowledge. Expand your interests and beware of insular thought. Be open-minded to new ideas and experiences. Be empathetic to other perspectives.

Family: This card represents home, closeness, and comfort in others. Make long-lasting relationships built on friendship and loyalty. Take comfort in and acknowledge those you hold dearest to your heart. Family and home is what you make it, it can be chosen or it can be blood. Either should be cherished and celebrated.

The Bear: This card represents strength, courage, and resilience. You must protect what you hold dear. A fight may be upon you, but with persistence, you will succeed. Stick to your strengths and convictions, and don't give up.

The Moon: A tranquil connection between self and nature. A spiritual journey is upon you. Take time to explore why you are who you are. Examine your beliefs. Reflect on your self, your actions, and your spirituality.

The Mountain: A hard journey that is worthy of your ambitions. It is a long road ahead, with many hardships. With dedication, time, and investment you can reach the top of this mountain. Beware, there will be appealing indulgences and situations that will distract you from your goal. Stay focused and don't be scared to get your hands dirty.

Sacrifice: Why do you hurt? What causes have you been a martyr for? If you are suffering make sure the cause is true, and worthy of your pain. If the cause is true, the universe will thank you for your hardship. Beware a dishonest loyalty to purpose or person. Know your worth.

Release: A release is needed. The weight of what you bear is overwhelming. Do not be afraid to reach out for guidance. Ask those you trust around you to share the load of your labor. You must tell the world you're in pain. You may be surprised by its response.

The Pact: You have committed to a major contract or agreement to a person or situation. Take it very seriously. This will have a lasting effect on self and surroundings. Proceed with absolute intellect and care.

The Lovers: A major bond has formed. A friend, lover, job, or place. Treat this bond with care. This is a time for empathy and devotion. The more you give of your self the stronger your connection. Nurture your surroundings, spread love and positivity to those that surround you.

Lust: A time of or a need for sexual desire. Love, care and protect your sex, it is an important part of you. Beware clouded judgment and examine intention. Take note that sex should be fun, positive, healthy, and consensual. This is a time for exploring your desires.

The Fool: Be thoughtful. Fools often go where fools have been before. Remember where you have been, what mistakes you have made, and what has made you healthy and happy. Don't make the same mistakes of the past. Use your knowledge of personal history to navigate a better future. Beware a repeat of a bad past situation.

Secrets: We all keep secrets. Some almost impossible to keep in. It may be time to surface and share your knowledge. Be careful who you choose to share this confidential information with. Beware a secret between friends or a lover could be damaging. Make sure your secrets aren't an evasion of a needed truth.

Sacred: Some things are important to hold dear to one's self. Hold to your convictions. Cherish the things you are devoted to. You may need to examine what those are. What means the most to you? How do you protect and nurture it?

Laughter: This a time of or a need for joy. Laughter and entertainment make us human. They make us enjoy the world. Comedy is one of the strongest creations of man. It helps us connect through our differences and is a universal language. Use laughter and comedy as a tool to help yourself and others get through difficult situations.
